An Interview With Mr. Larned-The Couple

MARY LARNED.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, ILL., January 11.—Late this afternoon, a disclosure was made in an evening paper here that little the well from one of Chicago's numerous mysteries, and at the same time provides food for the gossips that will set all the tongues a wagging. On September 5 last John F. O'Rourke, a lawyer from St. Louis, and Miss Mary Larned, daughter of Albert H. Larned, 256 Dearborn street, went out in a row-boat from the foot of the Twelfth street for a row on the lake and were not heard of afterward. Mr. O'Rourke was a man 35 years of age, with a wife and three children at Kirkwood, Mo., suburb of St. Louis, and practiced in the St. Louis courts. He was a man of wealth and in good standing.

Miss Larned was 25 years of age. Her father is secretary and treasurer of the W. E. Frost Manufacturing Company, corner of Canal and Twelfth streets. Miss Larned was a boarder at a ladies' seminary in Kirkwood for the school year ending June last, and during her residence there became intimately acquainted with the O'Rourke family, who occupy a high position in Kirkwood society. O'Rourke was known as an expert carman and the owner of several boats, which he kept for his own amusement. Miss Larned and all equally vague and unsatisfactory. Mrs.

Larned's young woman's mother, was most distracted, as she believed that the bottom of the lake. Excitement became intense at the end of several days, when the boat with an oar-lock broken, one oar gone, and one end broken in so that it leaked badly, was driven by the wind into the South Chicago harbor.

The boat was fully identified, but no trace of the occupants was found. It was the general opinion that the boat was driven down the lake, and that the couple were still in it.

A watch was kept along the shore for the bodies of the unfortunate couple.

About four weeks ago Mrs. O'Rourke, at Kirkwood, Mo., received a letter written in a disguised hand, and which was signed, Mich.

asking if she had ever heard anything from her husband or if his body was ever found.

Mrs. O'Rourke had mourned her husband as dead, and was about to answer the letter when it occurred to her that it could not have been written by a stranger, as the curious had forgotten the circumstances long before that. She accordingly consulted friends, and it was decided to employ a detective to look the matter up. This was done and the office after which a decoy letter was mailed. The letter was received and discovered that the letter was received by Miss Larned in person. He also learned that Mr. O'Rourke was living with her and that the two were passing as man and wife under an assumed name. The lawyer was employed as a shore porter and was receiving only a nominal salary. In consequence the couple were of the verge of starvation, and all the jewelry the couple possessed had been sold.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 11.—Senator

Estes is very confident that his resolution calling for payment of the $10,000,000 called bonds in silver will pass the Senate. "This resolution is not mandatory," said the Senator this morning to the Post-Dispatch correspondent. "It is merely expressive of the views of Congress. I did not have time to introduce a bill, or I would have done so. I am sure that every silver man who is a silver man will vote for it."

A prominent member of the House stated this morning that in his opinion the resolution would not prevail. Very few of the silver members of the House, he said, were willing to adopt the advanced views of Senator Estes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 11.—Certain appointments made by the President within the last six months have created great disa-fection. This is only natural, since the office of the President is not a place where members of the Democratic party. It was supposed, however, that with the appointment of one or other of the candidates for an office the animosity which characterized the contest for it would cease. Since Congress has not been able to elect a President, the President has been obliged to appoint men who are not of the party which he represents. This is a very serious matter and it is to be hoped that the President will not be obliged to appoint more Information About Appointments.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 11.—There has been a great deal of speculation in the last five days as to the probable action of those heads of departments who were called on recently to furnish the Senate committees with the facts as to the removal of Republicans to fill the vacancies thus created. It is stated on good authority that the information will not be furnished by these heads of departments direct. They hold that the President should properly come from or through him. Besides, in many cases appointments have been made by the President in direct violation of the Senate's recommendations and the President is the only person who could furnish information on the subject. In some cases the President has called on heads of departments to know what there was on record for or against John Smith and Charles Jones, as the case might be. The answer has been, perhaps, that committees are on file, while there is nothing known against him. The appointment of these gentlemen is then made and the head of the department knows no more about the matter than the applicants for the office who were disappointed. The papers on file in the department would give no clue to the reasons for removal or appointment. Again, as a gentleman who supposed a change had been made for the pure and simple reason that the office was a Republican and the man who wanted it was a Democrat what could he do? The difficult question? It has been decided that when information has been requested in a particular case, the papers on file

JARDINE'S DEATH.

THE BAD END OF THE KANSAS CITY PASTOR'S CAREER.

Dying Under the Influence of Chloroform in the Vestry of Trinity Episcopal Church—The Deceased's Last Attempts to Interview Bishop Robertson—A Verdict of Suicide Rendered—The Funeral Arrangements.

Trinity Episcopal Church is on the north-west corner of Third-fourth and Morgan streets. It is a handsome little one-story edifice with a two-story vestry in the rear. In the northeast corner of the second floor of this vestry on a pallet laid on two benches the Rev. Henry Jardine lay sleeping yesterday morning. The reverend gentleman had passed several nights there, taking his meals during the day with his friend, the rector of Trinity Church, Rev. George C. Betts. When the daylight first poured in upon him yesterday he had not many hours' sleep, as he did not retire the night before until 2 o'clock. When he first opened his eyes he found himself after being shaken by the colored janitor of the church, Liverpool, who said: "Mr. Betts wants you to go over to his breakfast immediately." Mr. Jardine sat up straight, placed his right hand over his forehead and questioned at the man, and then, without a word, lay down again and slept. A few minutes later the sleeping man was again awakened.

This time it was by Bradley, the organ blower of the church, who called to him and said: "Get these up, man; get these up, or they'll be going without breakfast." Mr. Jardine opened his eyes lazily and looked at the man. In a few minutes he arose and went down stairs, where he was met by a woman to take a smoke no one knows. But after being down a few minutes he went back to the room upstairs and got in between the bed clothes again. Bradley, after awaking him, said he thought there must be something the matter with him, and he looked at him so queerly. Mr. Jardine informed Mr. Betts of the situation and he went up stairs and looked in the corner where Jardine was lying. Jardine had drawn a sheet up over his face slightly, and when they tried to pull it down, it came the sound of heavy, stertorous breathing.

"He is tired, poor fellow," said the rector; "let us not wake him until he has had his sleep out." The breathing became louder but, as all who heard it thought it was a stertorous sound, attention was paid to it. The man held his breath and was not breathing at all. The man held his breath and was not breathing at all. The man held his breath and was not breathing at all.

THE SHEET THAT COVERED THE FACE and head was not drawn down, and no answering movement was made by the man. Mr. Dyer caught the sheet and pulled it down, and when he did so, the face of the man was a handkerchief. The forehead and chin were as black as the assistant's gown. Struck with terror, Mr. Dyer ran below and informed his rector that something terrible had happened. Mr. Jardine's body was then accended the stairs again and moved to where Jardine lay. Mr. Betts removed the handkerchief from the face and, pressing it to his nostrils, dropped it with the exclamation: "Chloroform! chloroform! he has taken too much to work to resuscitate the unconscious clergyman."

Mr. Dyer, who was across the way, was sent for, and he was on the scene in a moment. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so.

BRING BACK A SPARK OF LIFE was done. It was without avail. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so.

THE SERRAVALLO PLANNED her back and said she had been instructed not to receive any communications from Mr. Jardine. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so.

A HALF-DOZEN VIALS OF CHLOROFORM. Mr. Jardine had secured the chloroform unknown to his friends, having purchased himself to the clerk as being in great need, caused by an aching tooth. He placed his right hand over his forehead and questioned at the man, and then, without a word, lay down again and slept.

THE CORONER ARRIVED at 2 o'clock, and from that hour until 10 in the evening took testimony on the inquest. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so.

were being made to resuscitate him. Said Mr. Betts: "The chain which was found about the neck of the deceased, it is made of a chain of links about an inch long and half an inch broad. It was discovered upon the removal of the clothes of the man, and appears to have been worn upon the body a long time. As to the reason for wearing it, I will state, although I have not speaking positively, yet from his life of severe habits of abstemiousness known to me, I assume that it was worn as an act of discipline. It was found that the chain had been worn long time, probably for years. It was brought from wear and the skin which it encircled was as calloused as a workman's hand."

A verdict of suicide was rendered. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so.

of Father Jardine lay in Trinity Church this morning. The solemn surroundings were not more solemn than the face of the dead man, who was attired in his black, priestly garments. The body was placed in a temporary bier, and the funeral was held at 10 o'clock.

After a dispassionate hearing had been sent to Kansas City, "Father" Betts was asked whether he had any more to say in regard to the case. He said he had nothing more to say, and the case was closed.

THE BISHOP'S DEATH. The man was lying on his back, his head on the floor, and his hands were outstretched. Mr. Dyer was asked to call a doctor, and he began to do so.

CAPTAIN MEREDITH'S DEATH.

He Takes an Overdose of Morphine and the Drug Does Its Worst.

At 5:30 p. m. yesterday, Mr. Frank O. Ryburn, residing at 8870 Delmar avenue, while sitting in the parlor was startled to hear his room-mate, Captain Harry H. Meredith, call to him from up-stairs in a very excited way. He ran up-stairs, when Captain Meredith asked him to go to a doctor immediately as he had taken an overdose of morphine. Mr. Ryburn rushed out and without any delay secured the attendance of Dr. Wilcox. By the time they got back to the room, Captain Meredith was in a comatose condition. The usual remedies were applied, but without result. Antidotes and electricity were employed with some temporary success, but all attempts to give emetics resulted in failure, and the poison was taken an overdose of the drug to alleviate his sufferings. The nearest relative of the deceased had been in the habit of taking morphine. He had been despondent on Saturday, and there was no doubt in his opinion, that the deceased had accidentally taken an overdose of the drug to alleviate his sufferings. It has been rumored for some time past that there was likely soon to be an open rupture between the Mayor and at least two of the Aldermen, and an angry debate between the Mayor and one of the Aldermen just before the meeting of the Board of Public Works, presided over by the Mayor, was a partly corroborated report of the report that the Aldermen were not in harmony with the Mayor, and that a rupture in the near future may be looked for. Mayor Joyce has written to the managers of the Castro Street Line, Company, Louisville and Nashville, and Illinois and St. Louis Railroads, asking them to furnish the city with a number of electric lights at the Broadway crossing, and has secured favorable replies.

The citizens' reward for the capture and conviction of the murderer or murderers of ex-Mayor Bowman has increased to $1,000.

The police lodged about fifteen traps last night. A number of charitable people sent donations of food and clothing to the station yesterday. Their example should be followed by others while the cold weather lasts.

THE NEWPORT TRAGEDY.

The Murdered Man Identified as Conrad Helmerich, from Missouri.

Newport, Ky., January 11.—The old man found murdered on Saturday has been identified as Conrad Helmerich, who came here in September last from his brother's farm, near Hillsburgville, Cooper County, Mo. He was about to go to Kingsburg, Ind., when he was murdered. There it yet no clue to his murderer.

Death of Mr. David Humphreys.

Mr. David Humphreys, a commission merchant and well-known citizen, died on Saturday night at his residence on Lucas avenue. Mr. Humphreys was 58 years of age. He was born in Virginia, but came to St. Louis when a lad. He was in the grocery business with Mr. Higgins in 1881, and later, with his sister, was in a large near Jefferson City. The war and a subsequent business failure impoverished him, but his sterling integrity was evidenced in the selling of his claims, and for dollar. He leaves two daughters, the younger is years of age. His wife died when the latter was a child. He was a very man, and was greatly esteemed in business circles. His death was a great loss to the community, and his death has prostrated his children. The body will be taken to Pleasant Hill, Mo., this evening for interment.
